

Poetry.

The Vow of Washington.

[This poem was written by Whittier for the Washington centennial celebration in New York last week, and formed a part of the exercises, it being read by Clarence W. Bowen.]

The word was uttered, in April's sun,
Lay green the fields by the old man;
And every seedling, in the furrows,
Joked hands at last and were friends States.

O City sitting by the Sea!
How proud the day that dawned on thee,
When the new, long day, began,
And, in its noon, the sun had found the man.

One thought the cannon salvo spoke:
The resonant bell to the Atlantic stroke,
The solemn streets, the phantoms of the past,
And prayer and hymn borne heavenward from St. Paul's.

How felt the land in every part,
The strong heart of a Nation's heart,
As the great leader gave, with reverent awe,
His pledge to Union, Liberty and Law!

That pledge the heavens above him heard,
That you the sleep of centuries stirred;
In world-wide wonder listening people bent
Their gaze on Freedom's great experiment.

Could it succeed? Of former told,
And hopes deferred all history told,
Above the wrecks that strewn the mountain
Peak.

Was there dream of ages' trust laid
Thank God, the people's choice was just,
The one man equal to his trust,
Who beyond law, and without weakness good,
Calm in the strength of lawless reticence!

His rule of justice, order, peace,
Made possible the world's release,
Taught right and wrong that power is but a
Trust,

And rule, alone, which serves the ruled, is Just;

That Freedom generous is, but strong
In hate of tyrants, and in love of law,
Proclaiming that no man is holy to his
And lawless license making in his life.

Land of his love, with one glad voice
Let thy great standard glad
A century's sun of thee have risen and set,
And, God be praised, no more a Nation yet.

And still, we trust, the years to be
Shall prove his love was worthy,
Leaving our day with all its added loss
Current by fact and unstained by curse!

Lo! where with patient toil he nursed
And trained the new-born plant at first,
The youngling seedling, steadily true,
Stretch from the sunlit to the sunset sea.

In its broad and unshaking shade,
Sitting with none to make afraid,
We were now silent, through each mighty
Humb,

The wings of heaven would sing the praise of him.

Our first and last, his ashes lie
Beneath his own Virginia sky,
Forgive, forget, O true and just and brave,
The storm that swept above his sacred grave!

For, ever in the awful strife,
And dark times of the Nation's life,
Through the fierce tumult pierced his warning
word,

Their Father's voice his crying children heard!
The change for which he prayed and plead.

In that sharp agony was wrought;
No partial interest draws its alien line,
Torn North and South, the express and the pine.

One people now, all should be one,
Or none shall be our Nation-born;
We lift our hands to heaven, and here and now
Take on our lips the old centennial vow.

For rule and trust must needs be ours;
Chosen and chosen both are powers
Equal in service, and the claim
Of duty rests on each and all the same.

Then let the sovereign millions, where
Our banner flutters in sun and air,
Repeat with us the pledge a century old
—[Oak Knoll, Danvers, Mass.]

"Speak Nae Ill."

"Other people have their faults,
As have you and I;
But all ye choose to see of me,
Ye have no right to lie."

"If ye canna speak o' good,
Take care, and see ye
Earth has all too much o' woe,
And not enough o' weal."

"Nae care, ye say, ye say,
Ye say ye say ye say;
For ye will find enough to do,
If ye but look at me."

"If ye canna speak o' good,
Oh, dinna speak at all;
For ye are glib, and woe enough
On this mortal coil."

"If ye should feel like picking flaws,
Ye better go, I woe;
And read the book that tells ye all
About the mote and beam."

"Dinna lend a ready ear
To gossip or to spite;
Or ye may find ye have
Nae sunny things of life."

"Oh, dinna ill to others' woe,
Nor speak ill with your tongue;
But give ye kindly sympathy
To suffering ones of earth."

family still kept up a friendly interest in Nabby and her fortunes, the squire in particular being her "guide, philosopher and friend." In all emergencies of life.

"Why, what's the matter now, Nabby?" said the squire good naturedly, "Are you sick?"

"Yes, I am," said Nabby, emphatically, with a snap of her black eyes. "I'm sick to death of Josiah. I can't stand it any longer, and I've come to talk with you about getting a divorce. You see he's been growing worse now for a good while. I've kept it to myself pretty much, because I was ashamed of it, and then I kept hoping he'd do better. I've talked and talked to him, and said and done everything a woman could, but it seems as if the more I talk the worse he grows."

The squire looked at Nabby's sharp, hard face and was hardly so surprised as Nabby expected, that Josiah had not been reformed by the vigorous "talking to" he had undoubtedly received.

"He grows more and more shiftless and good for nothing," continued Nabby, "but I finally didn't do much but set round the kitchen fire half-boozed. If there's anything I hate," burst out Nabby, "it's a man forever settling round the house under foot. And there I was, taking in washing and a shawl" early and late, to be kinder decent and forward, and him no better than a dead man on my hands, so far as help is any way concerned, and so I've told him, time and again. He worked just about enough to keep himself in drink. He knew he couldn't get any of my money for that."

"But I stood it all till about a fortnight ago. I'd been working hard all day, I'd been Miss Barber clean house, and I'd seemed as if every bone in my body ached, I was so tired. I came along home, thinking how good my cup of tea would be, the first thing I see when I entered the kitchen door was old Hank Slater sitting in my rocking-chair. He and Josiah were both drunk as—'as hogs,' said Nabby, shuddering at an unbecoming animal, in her best for a simile.

"They'd tramped the mud all over my clean floors. The cook's stove was jammed full of wood scraps like all possessed. I wonder they hadn't burned the house up before I got there. And they'd got my best tea-pot out to heat some water, and the water'd all boiled away, and the bottom came out. I don't want to see Josiah, and I don't want to see Hank Slater, and I don't want to see a consort with such such such of the earth as that Hank Slater. I tell you squire, I was mad. I just flung that kitchen door wide open, and see I—

"'Get out of this house, Josiah Gould, and don't never let me see your face inside on again.'"

"So he, meek as Moses, 'Where shall I go to, Nabby?'"

"So I, I didn't care where you go to, so long as you don't come near me. I've said as much, and I've said as much, and I don't want to see Hank Slater's friends round my house."

"Well?" queried the squire, as Nabby's narration came to a pause.

"Well," said Nabby, in a rather subdued tone, "he went off, and he hasn't come back, and I want a divorce."

"Now, Nabby," pronounced the squire, "I know you better than that. You are not the woman to give Josiah up, and let him go to the bad without a struggle. You feel as if you've got to have it, and I don't want to see Hank Slater's friends round my house."

about a burglar and a lone woman, kept coming into her head, and she carefully avoided the thick darkness of the corner and the pantry-door as she groped around the kitchen for the candle. Of course, she had heard some one out.

"Two heads are better than one, if one is a sheep's head," Nabby might have heard muttering out in the wood house, as she stooped painfully down picking up chips; by which oracular utterance I suspect she was thinking what a good supply of kindlings Josiah always kept on hand for her, and how much more comfortable it was in the old times coming home to a house bright with light and warmth and Josiah's welcome.

For Josiah cherished the most profound admiration for Nabby, an admiration not unmingled with awe. He thought her a most wonderful woman. She was just as beautiful to him now as in the old courting days, before the brightness and quickness of the black eyes had degenerated into slowness, before the smiling mouth had acquired its hard, firmly set expression, before there were any wrinkles in the smooth forehead. People thought Nabby had done well in marrying Josiah Gould, a pleasant, good-natured young fellow that everyone liked, a young mechanic, not very tall, and a shawl" early and late, to be kinder decent and forward, and him no better than a dead man on my hands, so far as help is any way concerned, and so I've told him, time and again. FROM CUBA.

Advanced Prices Give New Life to the sugar industry and what for years have been mere pastures are again flourishing sugar plantations.

HAVANA, April 27, 1889.

After many years of great depression in the value one of great staple, sugar, in the markets of the world, a reaction has taken place, and prices have advanced to a point which will encourage planters and encourage them to continue in the business, and to replant their lands which have been used as pastures while sugar was being sold at a price that did not pay the cost of making.

The bounty heretofore paid by the Government of Europe to the growers of the sugar beet will probably not be continued, as it has recently been doled out by the Government of Europe to the people at large without creating dissatisfaction. "Let every tub stand on its own bottom," is a true saying, and strictly adhered to will result to the good of all. The season continuing favorable, many plantations have begun grinding; but a few of the larger estates which take the cane from small farmers, are still at work, making all they can, so as to improve the opportunity of present good prices for sugar.

The cultivation of the Irish potato is spreading, and the product is very fine. A great many barrels of fine stock has been sent to New York this year, and the markets are well supplied at two cents per pound wholesale. The time is not far distant when only sufficient for feed will be imported from the North. Newport and Bristol once had the monopoly of supplying Cuba with potatoes and onions. I have lately seen a vessel in our harbor from my native State. "The three-masted schooner, Sarah A. Fuller now here from Providence. At one time many Newport craft found business in Cuba. The now Captain General Salazar, is taking active measures to suppress the bandits, which for a long time have kept the country in a state of alarm, with their robberies, tortures and arson; many have been captured and executed, while others were killed in their attempt to resist the Government troops. The Captain General holds Capitulations of Pardons, and principal officers responsible for any acts of these freebooters committed in these districts, as in some cases these persons had been accused of being partisans of these outlaws. The weather is very fine, and the island of Cuba is very healthy.

Last Saturday's Accident.

Master Walter Hartlett, the seven year old son of Mrs. Alexander Patterson of No. 33 Charles street, met with a most shocking accident last Saturday morning. He was stealing a ride by hanging on behind a coupe driven by Henry McDermott when his foot caught between the spokes of one of the wheels and was twisted completely off just below the knee. Among those who witnessed the accident was Mr. A. O'D. Taylor, Jr., and to his presence of mind great credit is due. He took the stump of the lacerated leg in his hands and succeeded in checking the hemorrhage until the hospital was reached. At the hospital it was found necessary to amputate the leg above the knee, which was successfully done by Dr. Eymond assisted by Dr. Barker, and the lad is now in an exceedingly healthful condition.

He is a plucky little fellow, and his schoolmates having contributed twenty-five cents each for toys for his amusement. He has stood his suffering without a word of complaint.

New Beneficial Society.

Malbone Lodge, No. 98, a new lodge of the New England Order of Protection, was instituted at G. A. R. Hall last week Friday evening by Supreme Medical Examiner C. H. Burr, assisted by Supreme Vice Warden of Massachusetts J. J. Whipple, ex-Mayor of Brockton. The officers elected are as follows:

First Senior Warden—John P. Sanborn, John A. Peckham, George H. Popple. Second Senior Warden—Walter Sherman. Warden—David Stevens. Vice Warden—William H. Shoen. Chaplain—James H. Gould. Guide—William H. Greene. Secretary—Thomas A. Spencer. Financial Secretary—William H. Boone. Treasurer—S. Perry. Grandmen—William H. Schwarz. South—James G. Albro, 2d. Medical Examiner—H. G. MacKaye, M. D. Trustees—James H. Barney, Albert C. Landers, E. W. Higbee.

The grand Council of the order for Rhode Island was formed Thursday in Providence, nine lodges of the State being represented. The grand officers elected included from the Newport Lodge John P. Sanborn, as Grand Warden, Walter Sherman, as one of the grand Trustees and John J. Peckham as a Grand Alternate. David S. Collins, of Providence, was made Grand Secretary.

The newspapers nowadays almost daily contain accounts of robberies and murders by so called tramps. Once the tramp was considered a nuisance, but not dangerous. By a process of evolution due to natural selection, and an environment of lax or ill-enforced laws and unprotected homesteads, and the survival of the fittest, which in this case, is the one who has the least regard for rights of life and property, he has become a daring and unscrupulous criminal—a whining beggar in the presence of superior force; a truculent ruffian in its absence. He needs abatement.

Maine has a tramp law which gives every vagrant of the high road sixty days in jail if arrested in a sober condition. If he is drunk the sentence can only be made for thirty.

Fall River will again become the eastern terminus of the Old Colony boats on and after Monday next.

We have taken the agency for COBB'S SOAPS. They are composed of the choicest materials and are highly commended by everyone who has given them a trial.

The TOILET SOAP is carefully medicated and delicately perfumed. It heals Chapped Hands, cures Eczema, and all Skin Diseases. Best soap for babies, and so pleasant in the mouth it is highly prized for teeth.

The LAUNDRY SOAP is combined with Borax in correct proportions, and is especially adapted for washing Flannels and Blankets. It is a luxury to use it, as it leaves the hands soft, and makes the clothes sweet as a lily and white as snow.

In order that you may test the merits of these Celebrated Soaps we offer you a sample or Introductory Package containing 45 cents worth of Soap for only 25 cents.

The wolf went round to the back door and knocked, and the little girl called out, what do you want? The wolf's answer was, It rains, it hails, it snows, it blows enough to cut off your little toes, and little girl if you'll let me come in and light my pipe, I will go right out again. No says the little girl. Mother said don't open the door for anyone until I return, and I won't. Well said the wolf determined to do one good action. Tell your mother to go to DENHAM'S new store and purchase a pair of those DIAMOND SPECTACLES just received, and they will save her eyes wonderfully; they are clear as crystal. Moral, go then and do likewise.
